TAKE THE CAKE

What turns regular food into bona fide pirate grub? A skull-and-crossbones cupcake pick. Just poke these pretties (there's a long toothpick already attached on the bottom) into your party fare, and call the crew to the refreshment table.

HAVE A HAT

You can't sail the high seas without the proper headgear—they might not even let you on the boat. So get your little buccaneers into ship shape with these cool paper party hats. And yes, they really do come in pink!

SWEET DEAL [^]

Little lassies love sweets, so a candy bar will be a hit at this pink-meets-pirate affair. We carry a nice selection of color-coordinated treats, including the miniature bones shown here.

FULL CUP [>]

Ahoy! Pirate flags in the punch! That's what you'll have when you customize the straws of your choice with these skull-and-crossbones straw wraps.

Tip: We made the cup wraps by gluing the paper portion of a cupcake pick to some sequin trim.

< MY TREAT

Unless you're prepared to walk the plank, you'll want to hook your pink pirates up with some seaworthy take-homes. And these little drawstring pouches? Well, they're perfect for lugging the loot.

< PLAYING TAG

When it comes to girl pirates, you can't go wrong with a little bling. And these cutie-pie necklaces should do nicely. Tuck them into treat bags or hand one to each guest as she enters the party.

THINK INK >

Make no bones about it, tattoos are a pirate trademark. But we'll tell you a secret: These are totally temporary. These can be rubbed away with warm water and a washcloth—making great little party favors.

YOU'RE A TREASURE v

Treat boxes should be shaped like treasure chests; every little pirate knows that. You can pack these miniature paper trunks with everything from wrapped candy to small gifts to spare chocolate tokens.
