TRIED AND TRIM

Here's a flight-of-fancy look to lighten up a tween-dream space. Fluff up a stately white shade by covering it with rosette-bedecked mesh. The result is a cute, age-appropriate accent.

GOTTA HAVE SHADES

Perch this pretty on the nightstand, and you'll always wake up on the bright side of the bed. This shade comes in bold-as-it-gets fuchsia—and we added the ribbon and the happy handmade pinwheels.

LIGHT IS A HIGHWAY

Do you have the drive to decorate? Well, let's get this shade on the road! Deck the plain gray shade with self-adhesive craft foam to act as traffic lines and a handful of miniatures—we went with a Big Apple theme—and you're ready to roll.

HAVE A NICE GRAY

This Moroccan-style shade was feeling blue (and white) until we painted over the white with two shades of gorgeous gray. The extra color mellowed the in-your-face pattern, which made it perfect for our kicked-back space.

HAPPY OWL OVER

We fell in love with this winged-wonder accent lamp, but it had a kitschy quality that didn't quite jive in an uber-girly space. Here was the solution: feminine rosette trim, glued right to the shade. A wise decision, no?

JAR AND AWAY

← This oversized jar lamp is begging for embellishment. And you can do it two ways: fill the jar and jazz up the shade. We stenciled the birdie onto the burlap before gluing on a trio of flowery papercrafting embellishments.

PRESTO CHANGE-OH!

Pull a seasonal frou-frou switcheroo by changing the goodies in the jar. We did ornaments and garland for the holidays—then twigs and eggs for every day.
