Get a Rope

The last thing you want to do is pound a tent pole (or wrestle a sewing machine). Instead, knot rope or jute twine between pairs of sturdy trees, and drape your way to this easy-does-it oasis. Now kick off them boots and relax. Yee Haw!

» Sit a Spell Easy setup and teardown make this temporary shelter a great idea for slumber parties, summer picnics and trips to the beach. To make it siesta-ready, bring along a couple of quilts and big pile of fluffy, coordinating pillows. And maybe leave the spurs at home. (Do cowboys wear flip flops?)

Can't find the perfect trees?
Try sturdy metal poles instead...
just don't forget a mallet.

Pile 'Em Up

All thumbs when it comes to that pesky needle and thread? We hear you, pardner. You can have coordinating pillows without a fuss. Wrap up a pillow form (just like a present), and tie it closed with a length of pinking shear-trimmed fabric.

NO-SEW TENT HOW-TO:

Yardage:

4 Yards Main Fabric

1 ¾ Yards Coordinating Fabric

- 1. Trim edges of main fabric with pinking shears. Along one short side of fabric, cut 1" x 8" strips, about 5 ¼" apart. You'll cut a total of ten strips.
- 2. Cut a piece of coordinating fabric that measures 56". Trim the edges with pinking shears, and then cut strips (as in step 1) along the long edge.
- 3. Use the strips to knot the two fabrics together.
