⧘ boxed in These little boxes are big on style. Itty-bitty and totally sweet, they began as bare paper mache. First, cover each box with bright, patterned paper. But don't stop there! Give them new life with a trio of miniature glass knobs. Are they pint-sized gift boxes, teeny-tiny treasure chests or perfectly petite décor?

« on the knob You can't stop these girly stoppers. They're just too pretty to hide. To make them, select a coordinating group of knobs and pulls, and shorten the screws with a handsaw. Then simply twist the knobs into the bottles' existing corks.

≈ keyed up

Need a place to hang your tags and skeleton keys? No? Well, that's okay, because this stylish organizer works great for jewelry too. The unconventional mix of all-the-rage chevron and timeless turquoise creates bold and beautiful contrast on this fun-meets-functional piece.

≈ like a charm Pull off a knobby-chic look with these ultra-trendy necklaces. To make your own, choose knobs with pins in the middle—and remove them. Then thread a headpin or 20-gauge wire (looped and coiled on each side to secure) through the middle of the knobs. Finish by attaching a chain, antique-style charms and coordinating ribbon with jump rings.

» once upon a time

The time is right for crafting a one-of-a-kind timepiece. This one starts with a pre-distressed metal plate. Simply drill holes for the knobs and screw them into place. When you want a simple yet standout project in no time, this quirky clock fits the bill.

sign me up First, back a piece of cork with interfacing so that the other layers below won't be seen through the fabric. Then glue the cork to foam core, cover it with fabric and place it in a pretty frame. Use a handsaw to shorten the screws from a variety of knobs and use an awl to poke holes for the knobs into the cork. Repeat the first three steps to create a matching back piece.

sheer elegance

Get a handle on chic table décor with this knob-bedecked tree. It all starts by hot gluing an assortment of clear and mercury glass knobs to a Styrofoam™ cone. Then simply tuck crystal-like beads topped with filigree bead caps into any gaps to fill in this stunning centerpiece.

≈ tip: Give your tree a gorgeous glow by wrapping clear mini-lights around the Styrofoam™ cone before adding the knobs. Floral pins keep the lights in place and out of your way as you trim the tree with knobs galore.

» name that knob

Dress your table to impress with these vintage-style place card holders. Using a handsaw, shorten the screw of a flat-bottomed knob. Wrap wire around the remaining part of the screw, and form the wire into a decorative swirl to hold a dainty charm. Then tie on some ribbon to hide the hardware and add a simple finishing touch.

trinkets & treasures

Whether you're walking down the aisle or adding a touch of romance to your home décor, you'll love personalizing your arrangement with our whimsical, vintage-inspired doorknobs. Begin by wrapping rustic burlap ribbon over a halved Styrofoam™ ball, and glue it to a Styrofoam™ cone. Next, insert your favorite knobs and decorative pulls to cover the ball, securing them with low-temperature glue. Finish by gluing beautifully simple fabric onto the cone, tying a satin ribbon around it and securing a flat-bottomed knob to the base.

hint: For the more traditional bride, this bouquet is the perfect accessory for your wedding rehearsal, leaving behind a lasting memory and family heirloom to cherish forever.
