snowed in…
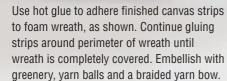

This wreath gets its showy, snowy appeal from loads of fluffy white yarn. To make it, measure strips of rug canvas (number of strips will vary, based on size of wreath). With a locker hook, pull yarn through canvas, using four strands of yarn per square.

Use hot glue to adhere finished canvas strips to foam wreath, as shown. Continue gluing strips around perimeter of wreath until wreath is completely covered. Embellish with greenery, yarn balls and a braided yarn bow.

playing ball

You'll have a ball with this cute and quirky wreath. It features foam balls, mounted on sturdy brass rings (available in the Needlework Department) and wrapped with soft, coordinating yarn. For a fully finished look, we filled in the gaps by adding smaller yarn balls to the front of the piece. They're made using wooden beads that were covered with double-sided adhesive before wrapping. We simply glued them into place.

A yarn-wrapped wreath gets oh-so-sweeter with this fuzzy flower embellishment. To create, draw a simple blossom and a leaf shape onto sturdy canvas. Fill in the shape with yarn, securing with hot glue as you work. Next, carefully cut out the shapes, staying as close to the edge of the yarn as possible. Finish with a collection of cute little buttons, tied artfully into place.

This sweet little perch was a perfect addition to our handmade wreath. It's a twiggy nest (available in the floral department), wrapped in cheery yellow yarn. And the lovey-dovey feathered friends? They're actually floral embellishments, that thanks to a little acrylic paint, now have the tweetest personalities.

This bird-bedecked wreath says "homespun" in cute and quirky style. It features crocheted doilies, chipboard letters, and oodles of sweet, yarn flowers. To make your own beguiling blossoms, trace circles onto stabilizer. Fill in the shapes with spirals of colorful yarn, hot-gluing as you work. Then, cut out the shapes and embellish with buttons, as shown.

Tip: How did our wreaths get their softly rounded shapes? Before adding any yarn, we padded foam wreath bases with batting, then wrapped them in simple white tulle.
