A decorative arrangement featuring a white orchid in a stone vase, a lit candle, and a basket of stones. The scene is set on a dark wooden surface against a light green background. The orchid has several white flowers with yellow and red centers. The stone vase is cylindrical and filled with smooth, light-colored river stones. A lit candle in a glass holder is visible in the foreground, and another lit candle is in the background. A basket filled with dark and light stones is also visible in the background.

watched pot (1-4) These pots are definitely pleasers! They're a study in pretty, organic décor. We painted a collection of terra cotta flowerpots with acrylic paint that coordinated with the color of the stones. Then, we worked in rows to apply the stones, quickly adhering with hot glue. Fill with floral foam, top with moss, and finish with your favorite faux bloom to complete the design.

« wax poetic Shed a little light on your rock-filled décor. Every room needs some candles! We applied the stones to wax using ordinary hot glue. So easy...so chic!

» pulled through Furniture that rocks? We're taking that literally! Dress up a boring chest of drawers by replacing the drawer pulls with our earthy river stones. You'll need a strong craft adhesive (try E-6000®) to adhere the stones to the metal hardware. What an unexpected way to update your décor!

« square one The shape of contemporary elegance? In this case, it's decidedly square. For this look, we set off a modern square vase with our chic black river stones. They complement a faux water kit (used according to the manufacturer's directions) and a sophisticated tropical bloom.

all arranged

(1-4) Your original arrangements get an edgy, organic twist when you fill them with our beautiful black river stones. This piece is built on a base that began as a pair of wooden ledges, available in the Home Décor Department. We painted them white and distressed them with sandpaper before gluing them back-to-back to create a planter. Then, we topped them with rocks (some moss-covered), candles, and a vaseful of branches and calla lilies.

stone zone

This pretty décor is anything but rocky. It's cool...it's earthy...it's understated. And it's so easy to create! Rock out with stone-embellished furniture, photos, candles, and even an indoor floor mat.

Why not put these well-worthy rocks in a frame? We did! For this look, adhere a favorite photo to a canvas, available in the Art Department. Then, arrange our artful river stones (adhering with hot glue as you work) to frame the shot. Finally, hang the canvas on the wall, accenting with an empty frame as shown.

» filled in Here's a quick and easy way to experience some stony décor. Place our pretty river stones inside elegant glass candleholders. Nestle in the candle of your choice, and you're done! Simple sophistication... voilà!

≈ drawer...adore

Hip hardware is just a stone's throw away. These earthy drawer pulls feature river stones, held in place with heavy-duty craft adhesive. Tip: This hardware is bowl-shaped, so we filled the indentations with hot glue and topped them with felt to create a flat surface before gluing on the stones.

rock and a hard place (1-4) This well-laid table absolutely rocks! The effect is elegant, earthy and unique. This design starts with store-bought cloth placemats. Back them with foam board that's been measured to fit, and hot glue to keep in place. Then, use more hot glue to adhere a collection of little river rocks.

⤴ take the floor

Who wants a run of the mill rug? Not us! We prefer this rustic, rocky floor mat—it was so easy to create! We mounted latch hook canvas on canvas fabric. Then, we covered it in a bevy of beautiful river stones. Hot glue held everything in place. Total zen appeal!
